COUNTRY INFORMATION

The Seychelles is a group of 115 islands located in the Indian Ocean to the north of Madagascar. The Seychelles economy is primarily based on tourism and fishing. The rapidly growing financial sector, linked to the establishment of the Seychelles International Business Authority and the introduction of progressive laws facilitating the establishment of offshore structures and encouraging inward investment, is now a significant element of the economy. An ever-increasing number of international banks and insurance companies have established either branches or subsidiaries whom, together with local management, accounting, and legal firms, provide clients with support. SFM has its own offices in the Seychelles and is licensed as a local resident agent.

POLITICAL STRUCTURE

Politics of Seychelles takes place in a framework of a presidential republic, whereby the President of Seychelles is both head of state and head of government, and of a multi-party system. Executive power is exercised by the government. Legislative power is vested in both the government and the National Assembly. The President of Seychelles is elected by popular vote for a five-year term of office. The cabinet is presided over and appointed by the president, subject to the approval of a majority of the legislature. The unicameral Seychellois parliament, the National Assembly or Assemblée Nationale, consists of 34 members, of whom 25 are elected directly by popular vote, while the remaining nine seats are appointed proportionally according to the percentage of votes received by each party. All members serve five-year terms.

ECONOMY

The economy of Seychelles is based on fishing, tourism, the processing of coconuts and vanilla, coir (coconut fiber) rope, boat building, printing, furniture, and beverages. Agricultural products include cinnamon, sweet potatoes, cassava (tapioca), bananas, poultry, and tuna. The public sector, comprising the government and state-owned enterprises, dominates the economy in terms of employment and gross revenue, employing two-thirds of the labour force. In addition to the now booming tourism and building/real estate markets, Seychelles has renewed its commitment to developing its financial services sector. Government officials and industry participants believe this could overtake the tourism industry as the chief pillar of the economy by 2017.

POPULATION

With a population of 90,024, Seychelles has the smallest population of any African state. About 90% of the Seychellois people live on the island of Mahé, while most of the rest live on Praslin and La Digue, with the remaining smaller islands either sparsely populated or uninhabited. Most Seychellois are descendants of early French settlers and East Africans who arrived in the 19th century. Tamils, along with other South Indians and Chinese (1.1% of the population) account for the other permanent inhabitants.

LANGUAGE

The official language of government and commerce in the Seychelles is English, while Seychellois Creole (Kreol) — a creole language derived from French and African tongues — is the native language of 91.8% of the people. However, English and French are also commonly used and are also considered official languages of the islands along with Kreol.
